SCOPE OF WORK & GUIDELINES

4.1 Background

Drug abuse and gangs are contributing factors that propel young people towards radicalisation and life in crime. A 2011 study showed that the rate of drug abuse in Male' is at 6.7%. Drug abuse often leads to violence and recruitment by gangs that allow for easy access to drugs. However, not all drug addicts belong to gangs nor do all gangs deal in drugs. The criminal justice system allows for drug users, through drug courts, to send those convicted towards treatment rather than impose punitive measures. However, the long wait time and the arduous administrative process often push individuals looking to kick drug addiction back into the habit. Over time multiple offences precludes the rehabilitation process and lands drug users in prison, which is seen as a hub of radicalization.

A nationwide public information and education campaign will be conducted to reduce demand for drugs by promoting positive behaviour changes that will empower youth to reject drug use and abuse and encourage reintegration into society. The campaign will largely be for the general public. However, prominence will be given to reach out to youth groups via parents and teachers. Messages will be designed in a manner that is youth friendly and mediums that youth engage will be prioritized
